

Warehousing Logistics

For our clients who choose not to operate their own warehouses in Northern Nevada at this time, Miller Industrial Properties represents warehouse operators, which can provide complete warehousing logistics in addition to storage space for your needs. These warehousing services firms can offer varied degrees of logistical services based on your needs. Many times, employing a warehousing services firm can help a company control their distribution costs as well as their overall cost of doing business.

The firms we represent tend to have excess space in their existing warehouses and wish to utilize that space productively. They are already fully operational servicing their client base with their products. You can benefit from these in place services by utilizing their excess warehouse space, services and expertise. Many times this type of operation can combine their inbound and/or outbound freight with their own to achieve savings for both parties. In addition, since they already have a long-term lease in place on the facility, you benefit from their lease rate on a far larger space that you could lease with your smaller needs.

Many times, we are aware of firms that will be glad to work with a company desiring Third Party Logistics Services that may not be listed on our website listings. Fill out our super simple form and tell us in your own words what you are looking for, and we'll help you out.
